Romney introduced the following reso-mesting of the council last night, when Romney introduced the following resolution:

AN ADDITIONAL BOND.

"Resolved, That in accordance with the provisions of section 206, page 88, of the revised ordinances of 1882, the amount of the bond of the city treasurer is hereby fixed at the sum of $250,000, and said treasurer is hereby required to furnish an additional bond for that amount with good and sufficient sureties in the like sum of $250,000 and present the same to this council for its approval at its next regular meeting."

Dale—That is a matter I do not like to touch upon in public. At any other place I might talk to you. Remember, however, I do not say that the old bond is defective.

O'Mears thought it was proper to have an additional bond was no good, the treasurer would be bound only in the sum of $250,000.

Romney was serry to see the matter discussed in public. There were many things in connection with the affair that it would be for the best interests of the city not to publicly discuss.

After hearing this there were no more questions sprung, and the resolution was referred to the finance committee.

Le Prohon said that in presenting it he was moved by the fact that warrants were selling at a discount; brokers stood ready right in the building to scalp the paper issued by the city and the public was the loser.

Dale objected to it for the reason that it would have the effect of keeping the treasury practically empty. Liquor declers, for instance, would buy warrants at a discount to pay their licenses and others would do the same.

STREET SPRINKLING. Regarding the manner in which J. H. Griffin is doing the street sprinkling, the committee on streets reported that previous to June 30 there was good cause for complaint regarding the manner in which the sprinkling was being done. The street supervisor, finding the work to be unsatisfactory, notified Mr. Griffin and ordered him to remedy the matter. The supervisor also refused to issue the certificate as to efficiency of the work, which is, according to the contract, made a condition of payment. Since the adoption of the resolution by the council calling attention to the matter, the sprinkling had been done properly and the con-tract complied with, both by the con-

The officers were under orders to keep one half of the street clear during the parade, the object being simply to preserve order and thereby protect the people against accidents. On this particular occasion, the street was simply packed with people, men, women and children, along the line of march, and the officers were keeping the space for the procession clear. To acomplish this, it was necessary to order back those who started to cross the open space, for if a few were allowed to break the line, others would follow, and confusion would take the place of order, perhaps with serious consequences. Mr. Jennings, the captain says that for line Mr. Jennings, he says, thereupon followed him into the space, defying the officer, who, after warning him to retire, finally placed him under arrest.

That a merchant is pushed for room, no matter how large his establishment may be. Sometimes he is pushed for money, too. When both pushes come together, he has to push something himself to get even. We are now pushing GRANITEWARE all we know how. Cash cuts no figure this time.
